Sudden Cardiac Arrest Responder Awards

Public recognition of first responders who successfully revive sudden cardiac arrest victims is an appropriate expression of thanks, and also a way to educate the public about sudden cardiac arrest and encourage public CPR and AED access.

The Sudden Cardiac Arrest Association (SCAA) has developed a special Public Safety Award for agencies to present to employees involved in a sudden cardiac arrest rescue. The multiple versions of the award are designed to recognize heroes who have contributed to one or more sudden cardiac arrest rescues, and their design is consistent with most public safety agency formal uniform requirements. As pictured, the brass award is a red, white, and blue design, 3/8 inch high and 1 3/8 inches wide, with a sudden cardiac arrest hero insignia in the center. There are five designs available to recognize a responder's first rescue and to commemorate subsequent rescues.
