

Dan Oblinger, Leadercraft

Dan Oblinger is a veteran hostage negotiator, author, and keynote speaker. His eclectic experiences include chicken rancher, ditch digger, onion ring maker, undercover cop, corporate trainer, HR consultant, seminarian, husband, and father of 6 adopted kids.

Since 2008, he has been translating basic principles of cultural leadership, listening, and negotiating for corporate audiences. His keynotes, executive coaching, and workshops are all built upon a simple premise. Everyone has a unique and valuable story. If we help them by intentionally listening, we become authentic leaders and lovers. Oblinger provides leadership workshops for ACEC chapters in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, and Michigan. His keynotes have delighted ACEC Georgia and Illinois in the last year.
