

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CLINICAL HYPNOSIS

Disclosure Statement

It is the policy of the American Society of Clinical Hypnosis to ensure balance, independence, and objectivity in all its individually sponsored educational programs.

ASCH requires that all individuals (this may include but is not limited to planners, committee members, faculty/speakers, staff, etc.) in a position to control and/or influence the educational content presented at a CME/CE activity, complete the disclosure process prior to their participation in the planning, development, and delivery of the CME/CE activity. These individuals must disclose relevant financial relationships in any amount with ACCME-defined ineligible companies, that have occurred within the last 24 months.

An ineligible company is defined by the ACCME as any entity whose primary business is producing, marketing, selling, re-selling, or distributing healthcare products used by or on patients. Providers of clinical service directly to patients are not ineligible companies (unless the provider of clinical service is owned, or controlled by, an ineligible company)

All disclosure information provided to ASCH will be reviewed to ensure that no conflicts of interest exist prior to the confirmation of the individual for the educational assignment. Disclosure of relevant financial relationship(s) does not disqualify the individual from participating in the CME/CE activity, however, requires resolution prior to their continued participation in the CME/CE activity.

An individual who refuses to disclose relevant financial relationships will be disqualified from being a planning committee member, a teacher, or an author of CME/CE, and cannot have control of, or responsibility for, the development, management, presentation, or evaluation of the CME/CE activity.

Examples of financial relationships may include but are not limited to the following: salary, royalty, stock options, consulting fee, or other financial benefit associated with roles such as speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which compensation is received or expected.

Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria for promotional speakers' bureau, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking, and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected. Contracted research includes research funding where the institution gets the grant and manages the fund's and the person is the principal or named investigator on the grant. There is no minimum dollar amount for relationships.
