The Art of Safety: Protect the Worker

Given the predictable nature of hazards, how and why do incidents occur? Think about this: If I know the winning numbers ahead of a lottery drawing, it's simple for me to be 100% successful at winning the lottery money. So, if we know how hazards are going to act and how they cause harm, why aren't we 100% successful at safety? It's because we don't fully grasp and utilize the Art of Safety, or how and why you must understand, lead, develop and protect people.

Stop Settling

One of the biggest problems with safety is that we settle.

- We settle for compliance.
- We settle for whatever tools and equipment are most readily available.
- We settle for work practices based on the way we've always done them.
