

Scott Boyd is the owner and President of Boyd Development Corporation, a 27 year old Orlando-based real estate development company. He has been active in the development of anchored retail shopping centers, multi-family projects as well as mixed-use and land development projects. Currently the firm is developing Hamlin, a 900+ acre mixed-use development along SR 429 in southwest Orange County. The project will include up to 2 million square feet of commercial, retail and office space along with over 2,200 residential units. Mr. Boyd has resided in Orlando, Florida since 1980 and has been married to Jennifer for 38 years. The Boyds have three adult children and are members of First Baptist Church of Orlando where he has served in various board leadership positions. Mr. Boyd currently serves as the board chair of The First Academy (a K-12 college preparatory school), as well as the Orlando affiliate of the National Christian Foundation. He also serves on the board of LIFT Orlando, a holistic neighborhood revitalization of the Orange Center Community in downtown Orlando.
