The following Web site provides a listing of current Ohio Congressional members, with pictures, and a map of the 16 districts. You can also use links to find out on what committees your representative sits, and what bills he/she has sponsored. After the 2010 census, Ohio lost two seats in the House of Representatives due to population decline. As a result new district boundaries were drawn.

MISTER SPEAKER

(REVISED JANUARY, 2017)

Until 2015, John Boehner (BAY-ner), former Representative from District 8 in southwestern Ohio, was the highest ranking Ohioan in the national government. He was elected to the position of Speaker of the House in the United States House of Representatives January 5, 2011. He held the position until October 29, 2015. The current Speaker is Representative Paul Ryan, from the 1st District of Wisconsin.

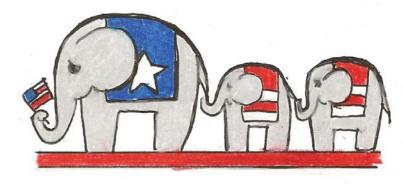

What is the position of Speaker of the House?

Most of our Representatives and Senators belong to either the Republican or Democratic party. Currently, there are more Republicans in the House of Representatives, so they are in the majority. Paul Ryan is a Republican, and was elected by his peers to be the Speaker in 2015. He is now in charge of the House of Representatives. In this important position, if anything happened to both the President of the United States and the Vice-President, Paul Ryan would become President. This is called line of succession, and is outlined in the United States Constitution.

What does the Speaker of the House do?

 The Speaker of the House oversees all sessions of the House of Representatives, or appoints someone to oversee the sessions. In this role, he calls on members of the House who want to speak for or against the bill being discussed. This gives him the authority to decide how much discussion is held for the bill or against it.

- The Speaker of the House appoints both Republican and Democratic Representatives to be on committees. It is in committees that bills can be changed and are prepared for House votes, so committee membership is very important. Mr. Boehner also decides to which committee a bill will go.
- If both the House of Representatives and the Senate meet together (a joint session), the Speaker of the House presides over this session.
- It is the Speaker's job to be certain that all Representatives follow the rules during sessions. If members do not use good behavior or don't respect other Representatives, he can call in the Sergeant of Arms to restore order.
- Usually, the Speaker of the House does not vote for a bill, nor does he or she testify for or against the bill in sessions.

As you can see, Representative Ryan has to represent the people of Wisconsin, who elected him, the Republican Party of which he is a member, and oversee the House of Representatives. He has to think about what is best for each of these groups.

SPEAKER SIGHTINGS

Look for mentions of the Speaker of the House in the news; on television, in the newspapers or on the Internet. What issue is he addressing? Is he speaking for the Republican party, in the role of Speaker, or is he addressing an issue important to his voters back in Wisconsin?

And to learn even more... Who is third in the line of succession to the Presidency?
