THE COMPOUND CONFERENCE

To make a finished preparation that builds your business and practice

Whether you have a compounding practice in a community or hospital pharmacy, are just starting out in compounding pharmacy, or have an established practice and want to advance your practice, this important program is for you. At the Compound Conference, attendees have an unprecedented opportunity to meet face-to-face with compounding pharmacists, technicians, and marketing representatives while attending a variety of continuing education sessions focused on understanding the latest information about compounding practice. You don't want to miss the continuing pharmacy education, exhibit hall and networking opportunities available at this conference.

DQSA REGULATORY AND LEGISLATIVE OVERVIEW

*Cynthia Blankenship, Esq.
Of Counsel, Rose Law Firm*

This session will provide a broad overview of what Congress has done, what the FDA has done, current trends during inspections, and how it all impacts compounding pharmacists.

CREATING A DIGITAL MARKETING FOOTPRINT IN 2017

*Luke Weatherlow
Senior Web Developer, Storey Marketing*

Marketing your compounding business can be overwhelming. In this session, we will discuss the fast-paced environment of marketing, the pitfalls of falling behind and how to be as helpful as possible online. You'll gain practical tips from an expert in marketing for compounders!

ACPE #0129-0000-17-075-L04-P/T 0.1 CEU

WHY DO I TEST, WHAT DO I TEST, WHEN DO I TEST?

*Ross Caputo, PhD
Chief Technical Officer, Eagle Analytical Services, a PCCA company*

Compounders often have questions about product testing. This session will help you answer the questions of Why, What and When is it required for USP testing of compounded preparations. A scientific approach describing what tests mean and frequency of use to achieve product quality will help clarify the issues around product testing.
