

Rhetoric in the Twenty-First Century

An Interactive Symposium

Oxford, England

July 3-7, 2012

At the Centre for Medieval & Renaissance Studies (CMRS)

Co-Chairs

Prof. James J. Murphy    Dr. Nicholas Crowe

Professor Emeritus of Rhetoric,
University of California, Davis

Senior Dean, Centre for Medieval & Renaissance Studies, Oxford

Priming Speakers

Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
Prof. Sir Brian Vickers	Prof. Peter Mack	Prof. James J. Murphy	Prof. Jennifer Richards	'Parliamentary Debate'

Prof. Sir BRIAN VICKERS, FBA, Senior Fellow, School of Advanced Study, University of London

Prof. PETER MACK, Director, Warburg Institute, London and Professor of English, Warwick University

Prof. JAMES J. MURPHY, Professor Emeritus of Rhetoric, University of California, Davis

Prof. JENNIFER RICHARDS, Head of School and Professor of English, Newcastle University

PARTICIPANTS LIMITED TO 20

Qualified applicants will be notified as they are accepted.

Registration Fee, including daily continental breakfast and lunch, opening dinner, closing lunch, and accommodation in the newly refitted St Michael's Hall, home of CMRS in the heart of Oxford: £600

Total fee payable at time of acceptance.

Applications online only. Application form may be downloaded from the CMRS website:

www.cmrs.org.uk

Inquiries to: ncrowe@cmrs.org.uk

---

About CMRS: The Centre for Medieval & Renaissance Studies was founded in 1975 by Drs John and Sandy Feneley to establish in Oxford a permanent institute for the interdisciplinary study of the Medieval, Renaissance and Early Modern periods. An independent and self-governing institution, CMRS is affiliated with Keble College, University of Oxford. CMRS provides a semester-based liberal arts education for undergraduate students wishing to study abroad in Oxford. This symposium is part of an annual summer programme of conferences, research fellowships and other development opportunities arranged by CMRS for visiting faculty.

