COMING TO A CITY NEAR YOU!

UPCOMING DATES: December 8, Houston and December 14, Dallas – Registration Form Attached
One Day Course Offered at $325 per person

WF&FSA, in conjunction with the Association Education Alliance, is offering a new one-day warehouse training program which will travel soon to a city near you! This one day course is based on the Essentials of Profitable Warehouse Operations© course, originally conceived by the American Supply Association. The course is intended to give managers a framework to teach essential warehousing functions to the teams they manage. The content also serves to refresh old concepts and introduce additional operating efficiencies. Topics include:

- The role of the wholesale distributor in the supply chain
- Inventory as cash
- Warehouse security
- Inventory accuracy and cycle counting
- Preventative maintenance programs
- Employee safety
- Facility layout and storage systems
- Inventory movement analysis
- Dead Stock
- The order transaction
- Functional roles in the transaction
- Team leadership and supervision

This course will move around the country to fit the needs of members. To view the list of cities for the first six months of 2012, please see below.

Many companies struggle with training. Most training is geared toward product knowledge, sales or data processing functions. The material handling team, the same people who have a significant impact on net profit, receive little or no formal training. This is your opportunity to train your operational personnel: branch managers, warehouse managers and key warehouse supervisors. Your training coordinators may be interested in attending to take the program back to your organization.

The Cost of the Program

This program is offered for an affordable $325 per person. Modest discounts can be offered for multiple participants from a single company. The tuition includes the Essentials of Profitable Warehouse Operations manual (currently sold at $160), lunch and other catering costs.

The Instructor

The course will be facilitated by Jason Bader, of the Distribution Team. He has presented the course in 10 cities around the United States. His ability to connect with participants stems from his experience growing up in the distribution business and spending several years working in warehouse operations. He transitioned to teaching and coaching in 2003.

Beginning with an explanation of how the wholesale-distribution business works, the course moves quickly to introduce key members of the warehouse team and explains how they contribute to an effective operation. Next comes an in-depth treatment of the orderly flow of materials from receiving through stocking, picking, packaging and delivery. Critical concerns like safety and security are also well covered. The course wraps up with examples of continuous improvements and how the warehouse employee can grow as a professional within the distribution business.
